From the Imperial Camp near Castelbaldo, July 9. N. S.

PRince Eugene having resolved to attempt the passing of the Adige, to prevent which the Enemy had been making Intrenchments, and using all imaginable Precautions, his Highness made the necessary Dispositions for this purpose, and ordered his Troops to make several Marches and Countermarches, to amuse the Enemy, and the better to conceal his real Design. Every thing being in a readiness, Colonel Patee marched the 4th Instant in the Night with a Detachment from Merlara down the Adige, to find out a proper place where to pass that River. His Highness also went that Night from his head Quarter at St. Martin, and came about to the next Morning to Merlara, from whence he proceeded towards Castelbaldo, near to which Place the Palatine Troops, those of Saxe-Gotha, and the Imperial Regiment of Bagni, were advanced, and had ranged themselves in a Line, which reached near Mezzi, a Place that the French had fortified. The Enemy were much alarmed with our Troops Arrival near Mezzi; and having sent a Reinforcement thither from La Badia, on the other side of the Adige, they sallied out, to the number of 1200 Foot, upon the Palatine Troops which lay nearest to them; but were repulsed with considerable Loss; and on our side there were not above 17 Men, one of them a Lieutenant, killed and wounded. Towards the Evening our Troops near Castelbaldo received 4 Pieces of heavy Cannon; and our General gave Orders for the erecting of a Battery against the Enemy's Post at Mezzi. The 6th his Highness received Advice from Colonel Patee, That being marched as far as Rotta-Nuova, he had sent 500 of his Men over the Adige in Boats, who had taken Post on the other side; upon which Orders were sent him immediatly to make a Bridge there, to pass over the River with the rest of his Detachment, and to secure himself of some advantagious Post, where the Enemy might not surprize or force him. His Highness also detached his Adjutant-General Count Beaufort with some Troops, with Orders to post himself on the Banks of the Adige, between Mezzi and Rotta-Nuova, and to observe whether the Enemy sent any Troops along that River towards the Place where Colonel Patee had passed it, and to give Notice thereof to his Highness, and to the said Colonel. Orders were sent at the same time to the Imperial Troops that had been left behind at St. Martin, and the other Posts along the Upper Adige, to be in a readiness to march upon the first Notice they should receive. The 7th Colonel Patee sent an Account, That his whole Detachment had now pass'd the Adige, and the Enemy had thereupon quitted all their Posts thereabouts as far as La Badia; and a Body of them was drawing together at Canda. Upon which his Highness sent him Orders what he should do further; and withal acquainted him, That he had received Advice that the Enemy were sending a Detachment of 3 or 4000 Men to the Lower Adige, who were already advanced beyond Legnago. Adjutant-General Beaufort returned, and gave an Account, That he had observed a Body of the Enemy's Horse marching along the Adige, and that his Dragoons thereupon dismounted; and firing upon them a-cross the River, they saw several of them drop. In the Evening his Highness received Advice from Colonel Patee, That he was marched with the Horse under his Command to Lucia, and his Foot was come as far as Boara; That Lieutenant-Colonel Messina, with a Party of the Palatine Regiment of Horse of Hatzfeldt, had beat one of 150 of the Enemy's Horse, killed between 40 and 50 upon the spot, and brought in a Captain, a Lieutenant, and 18 Troopers, Prisoners, and 30 Horses, and pursued the rest of them within a Mile of La Badia. Orders were thereupon dispatched to him to send out Parties to view the Country, and observe the Enemy. The Troops under the Command of Major-General Count Reising, and the Regiments of Herberstein and Guttenstein, which lay along the Upper Adige, were ordered to come down to Castel-Baldo; and the Posts which they quitted were taken up by the Regiments of Ravenstau, Kirchbaum and Zumingen. Our Battery against Mezzi being finished, we began this Night to mount our Cannon; whereupon the 8th in the Morning, the Enemy, to our great surprize, abandoned that Post, which they had fortified so well, that they might have held it a long time. His Highness immediately caused his Troops to take Possession of it; and judging the Enemy might also quit La Badia, he gave Orders to Lieutenant-Colonel Hoffman, who commands the Regiment of Bagni, upon the first Notice of their having so done, to pass the Adige in Boats with that Regiment, and secure that Post. His Highness himself crossed the River, and went to Colonel Patee's Detachment; and upon his Arrival there, was informed that the Enemy had actually quitted La Badia: Upon which he sent out Count Jorger, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Regiment of Herbeville, with 200 Horse towards that Place, and followed in Person with the rest of Colonel Patee's Detachment. Being arrived there, he found Lieutenant-Colonel Hoffman with the Regiment of Bagni before one of the Gates of the Town, ready to enter it, the French being then actually marching out at another Gate. The Enemy had no sooner evacuated the Place, but some Venerian Troops took Possession of it, and refused to admit those of the Emperor: Whereupon Prince Eugene, having in vain endeavoured by fair Means to bring the Governor to a Compliance, gave Orders for breaking down the Gate, and took Possession of this important Post; protesting against the Governor's Proceeding, and that he alone should be answerable for any Consequences that might attend it. The Troops commanded by Major-General Reising came this Day to Castelbaldo, and brought with them several Pontoons for a Bridge to be made over the the Adige below Mezzi, for the better Communication of our Troops on either side of that River. Several other Bridges are ordered to be made; and as soon as they are ready, the rest of our Troops are to pass the Adige. The 9th the Regiments of Herberstein and Guttenstein arrived at Castelbaldo. Our General received an Account, That the Enemy had also quitted the Canal of Malopera, and were retired towards Castagnaro, behind the Canal Bianco, and that they were under great Consternation; which indeed was evident, from their abandoning with such Precipitation so many Posts, which they had fortified with so much Art and Labour, that we expected they would have disputed the Ground with us Foot by Foot. Before we passed the Adige they had given out, That if we did get over, they would stop us, by cutting the Banks of that and the neighbouring Rivers, and laying the Country under Water. They had begun to do so at Mezzi, but retired before they had finished that Work: They attempted the same at Anguillara, but were again prevented by our Troops coming upon them: And we have taken such Measures as will prevent their accomplishing this Design.

Baden, July 10. The General Diet of the Swiss Cantons being assembled here, the Marquis de Puisieux, Ambassador from the French King, had Audience of them this Day, and made the following Speech:

Magnificent Lords!

EVery time that I have come into this Illustrious Assembly, I have endeavoured to give you new Marks of the King my Master's Friendship. I have had frequent Opportunities of doing it, in acquainting you with his Victories, and in sharing with you the Joy occasioned by our happy Successes. Fortune at present has favoured our Enemies; and I am now come to give you Expressions of the same Friendship and Confidence, without concealing from you the Affronts she has put upon us.

It is not usual for Ministers of my Character themselves to declare the Misfortunes of their Sovereigns: But the King my Master is unacquainted with those mean Politicks to deceive his Allies and his People by false Reports. His Arms have been unsuccessful in Catalonia and in Flanders: He himself has commanded me to tell you so. On one side, the Fury of the Rebels has misled and repulsed their Lawful King, who was come to free his faithful Subjects from the Oppression of a Foreign Power. On the other, the Courage of the French has carried them with too great Eagerness into the midst of Enemies they were not enough acquainted with, and whose Numbers have triumphed over their Valour. A vast Country abandoned, and lofty Towns brought under Contribution, have proved the Reward of the Conquerors.

It is not to seek from you, my Lords, the Comfort that is found in the midst of one's Misfortunes, by relating them to sincere Friends, that I recal to mind so melancholy a Thought: It is rather to comfort and encourage you. The King my Master is perswaded of your Affection for his Sacred Person, and of the Share you take in all that happens to him: He is also sensible that you know your true Interest.

You are not unacquainted, my Lords, with the Dangerous Condition into which the Liberty of your Country would be brought, if the House of Austria could resume that dreadful Superiority it had under Charles the Fifth. It is still aspiring, and would soon attain to it, through the Assistance of a World of blinded Allies, who, for their Sake, squander away the Treasures and Blood of their People: If any. It would soon arrive to it, if France should grow weary of opposing, or should be forced to yield to a too impetuous Torrent.

You have seen in one of Monsieur Mellarede's Memorials, which I have published, the Plots that are laid to break the Union of the Laudable Helvetick Body, and to destroy you by your own Hands. Be aware of the false Caresses that are made use of to win you; Despise the vain Threats that are employed to frighten you; Fly from the Snares that are laid for you; Do not forsake your Common Interest; Secure with firmer Bonds your mutual Confederacy; Be still more careful to preserve your solid Alliance with the King my Master, and do not suffer your selves to be scared by the unfair Description that is given you of his Affairs. Whatever they are, They do not distompose his great Mind; They do not disturb his Councils; They do not exhaust his Treasures; They do not cool the Zeal of his Subjects: He will not grow weary of Combating for the Liberty of Europe; and he will not be wanting in any thing to preserve yours if it ever should be attacked. This, my Lords, is what he has commanded me to declare to you; assuring you of his powerful Protection, and of his inviolable Friendship.

Vienna, July 14. N. S. On the 6th Instant the Court went out of Mourning, and that Evening there was an Opera and a Ball at the Emperor's Palace of Schonbrun; and the two Days following the Court was entertained with a Tournament, in which the Emperor himself gained two of the Prizes, the other three fell to the share of the Count de Zierotin, the Count de Colalto, and the Count de Paar. Baron Bartholdi, the King of Prussia's Minister, has lately received from his Imperial Majesty the Investiture of the Electorate of Brandenbourg and other Fiefs of the Empire, which are in the Possession of his Prussian Majesty and the Margraves his Brothers. This Morning the like Ceremony was performed by Baron Freyberg, in the Name of the Bishop of Augsbourg. The 7th Mr. Stepney, Her Majesty of Great-Britain's Envoy Extraordinary, and Monticur Bruininx, who has the same Character from the States-General, two of the Mediators for the Treaty with the Malecontents, returned hither from Tirnau. The 11th a Conference was held at the Favorite in the Emperor's Presence, upon the Affairs of Hungary, where all Letters and Papers which have lately been delivered on both sides, were examined; and the Day following, the Bishop of Osnabrug and Count Wratislau acquainted Mr. Step-

From the Imperial Camp near Caſtelbaldo, July 9. N. S.

PRince Eugene having reſolved to attempt the paſſing of the Adige, to prevent which the Enemy had been making Intrenchments, and uſing all imaginable Precautions, his Highneſs made the neceſſary Diſpoſitions for this purpoſe, and ordered his Troops to make ſeveral Marches and Countermarches, to amuſe the Enemy, and the better to conceal his real Deſign. Every thing being in a readineſs, Colonel Patee marched the 4th Inſtant in the Night with a Detachment from Merlara down the Adige, to find out a proper place where to paſs that River. His Highneſs alſo went that Night from his head Quarter at St. Martin, and came about 10 the next Morning to Merlara, from whence he proceeded towards Caſtelbaldo, near to which Place the Palatine Troops, thoſe of Saxe-Gotha, and the Imperial Regiment of Bagni, were advanced, and had ranged themſelves in a Line, which reached near Mezzi, a Place that the French had fortified. The Enemy were much alarmed with our Troops Arrival near Mezzi; and having ſent a Reinforcement thither from La Badia, on the other ſide of the Adige, they ſallied out, to the number of 1200 Foot, upon the Palatine Troops which lay neareſt to them; but were repulſed with conſiderable Loſs; and on our ſide there were not above 17 Men, one of them a Lieutenant, killed and wounded. Towards the Evening our Troops near Caſtelbaldo received 4 Pieces of heavy Cannon; and our General gave Orders for the erecting of a Battery againſt the Enemy's Poſt at Mezzi. The 6th his Highneſs received Advice from Colonel Patee, That being marched as far as Rotta-Nuova, he had ſent 500 of his Men over the Adige in Boats, who had taken Poſt on the other ſide; upon which Orders were ſent him immediatly to make a Bridge there, to paſs over the River with the reſt of his Detachment, and to ſecure himſelf of ſome advantagious Poſt, where the Enemy might not ſurprize or force him. His Highneſs alſo detached his Adjutant-General Count Beaufort with ſome Troops, with Orders to poſt himſelf on the Banks of the Adige, between Mezzi and Rotta-Nuova, and to obſerve whether the Enemy ſent any Troops along that River towards the Place where Colonel Patee had paſſed it, and to give Notice thereof to his Highneſs, and to the ſaid Colonel. Orders were ſent at the ſame time to the Imperial Troops that had been left behind at St. Martin, and the other Poſts along the Upper Adige, to be in a readineſs to march upon the firſt Notice they ſhould receive. The 7th Colonel Patee ſent an Account, That his whole Detachment had now paſs'd the Adige, and the Enemy had thereupon quitted all their Poſts thereabouts as far as La Badia; and a Body of them was drawing together at Canda. Upon which his Highneſs ſent him Orders what he ſhould do further; and withal acquainted him, That he had received Advice that the Enemy were ſending a Detachment of 3 or 4000 Men to the Lower Adige, who were already advanced beyond Legnago. Adjutant-General Beaufort returned, and gave an Account, That he had obſerved a Body of the Enemy's Horſe marching along the Adige, and that his Dragoons thereupon diſmounted; and firing upon them a-croſs the River, they ſaw ſeveral of them drop. In the Evening his Highneſs received Advice from Colonel Patee, That he was marched with the Horſe under his Command to Lucia, and his Foot was come as far as Boara; That Lieutenant-Colonel Meſſina, with a Party of the Palatine Regiment of Horſe of Hatzfeldt, had beat one of 150 of the Enemy's Horſe, killed between 40 and 50 upon the ſpot, and brought in a Captain, a Lieutenant, and 18 Troopers, Priſoners, and 30 Horſes, and purſued the reſt of them within a Mile of La Badia. Orders were thereupon diſpatched to him to ſend out Parties to view the Country, and obſerve the Enemy. The Troops under the Command of Major-General Count Reiſing, and the Regiments of Herberſtein and Guttenſtein, which lay along the Upper Adige, were ordered to come down to Caſtel-Baldo; and the Poſts which they quitted were taken up by the Regiments of Raventlau, Kirchbaum and Zumingen. Our Battery againſt Mezzi being finiſhed, we began this Night to mount our Cannon; whereupon the 8th in the Morning, the Enemy, to our great ſurprize, abandoned that Poſt, which they had fortified ſo well, that they might have held it a long time. His Highneſs immediately cauſed his Troops to take Poſſeſſion of it; and judging the Enemy might alſo quit La Badia, he gave Orders to Lieutenant-Colonel Hoffman, who commands the Regiment of Bagni, upon the firſt Notice of their having ſo done, to paſs the Adige in Boats with that Regiment, and ſecure that Poſt. His Highneſs himſelf croſſed the River, and went to Colonel Patee's Detachment; and upon his Arrival there, was informed that the Enemy had actually quitted La Badia: Upon which he ſent out Count Jorger, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Regiment of Herbeville, with 200 Horſe towards that Place, and followed in Perſon with the reſt of Colonel Patee's Detachment. Being arrived there, he found Lieutenant-Colonel Hoffman with the Regiment of Bagni before one of the Gates of the Town, ready to enter it, the French being then actually marching out at another Gate. The Enemy had no ſooner evacuated the Place, but ſome Venetian Troops took Poſſeſſion of it, and refuſed to admit thoſe of the Emperor: Whereupon Prince Eugene, having in vain endeavoured by fair Means to bring the Governor to a Compliance, gave Orders for breaking down the Gate, and took Poſſeſſion of this important Poſt; proteſting againſt the Governor's Proceeding, and that he alone ſhould be anſwerable for any Conſequences that might attend it. The Troops commanded by Major-General Reiſing came this Day to Caſtelbaldo, and brought with them ſeveral Pontoons for a Bridge to be made over the the Adige below Mezzi, for the better Communication of our Troops on either ſide of that River. Several other Bridges are ordered to be made; and as ſoon as they are ready, the reſt of our Troops are to paſs the Adige. The 9th the Regiments of Herberſtein and Guttenſtein arrived at Caſtelbaldo. Our General received an Account, That the Enemy had alſo quitted the Canal of Malopera, and were retired towards Caſtagnaro, behind the Canal Bianco, and that they were under great Conſternation; which indeed was evident, from their abandoning with ſuch Precipitation ſo many Poſts, which they had fortified with ſo much Art and Labour, that we expected they would have diſputed the Ground with us Foot by Foot. Before we paſſed the Adige, they had given out, That if we did get over, they would ſtop us, by cutting the Banks of that and the neighbouring Rivers, and laying the Country under Water. They had begun to do ſo at Mezzi, but retired before they had finiſhed that Work: They attempted the ſame at Anguilara, but were again prevented by our Troops coming upon them: And we have taken ſuch Meaſures as will prevent their accompliſhing this Deſign.

Baden, July 10. The General Diet of the Swiſs Cantons being aſſembled here, the Marquis de Puiſieux, Ambaſſador from the French King, had Audience of them this Day, and made the following Speech:

Magnificent Lords!

EVery time that I have come into this Illuſtrious Aſſembly, I have endeavoured to give you new Marks of the King my Maſter's Friendſhip. I have had frequent Opportunities of doing it, in acquainting you with his Victories, and in ſharing with you the Joy occaſioned by our happy Succeſſes. Fortune at preſent has favoured our Enemies; and I am now come to give you Expreſſions of the ſame Friendſhip and Confidence, without concealing from you the Affronts ſhe has put upon us.

It is not uſual for Miniſters of my Character themſelves to declare the Misfortunes of their Sovereigns: But the King my Maſter is unacquainted with thoſe mean Politicks to deceive his Allies and his People by falſe Reports. His Arms have been unſucceſsful in Catalonia and in Flanders: He himſelf has commanded me to tell you ſo. On one ſide, the Fury of the Rebels has miſtaken and repulſed their Lawful King, who was come to free his faithful Subjects from the Oppreſſion of a Foreign Power. On the other, the Courage of the French has hurried them with too great Eagerneſs into the midſt of Enemies they were not enough acquainted with, and whoſe Numbers have triumphed over their Valour. A vaſt Country abandoned, and lofty Towns brought under Conſternation, have proved the Reward of the Conquerors.

It is not to ſeek from you, my Lords, the Comfort that is found in the midſt of one's Misfortunes, by relating them to ſincere Friends, that I recal to mind ſo melancholly a Thought: It is rather to comfort and encourage you. The King my Maſter is perſuaded of your Affection for his Sacred Perſon, and of the Share you take in all that happens to him: He is alſo ſenſible that you know your true Intereſt.

You are not unacquainted, my Lords, with the Dangerous Condition into which the Liberty of your Country would be brought, if the Houſe of Auſtria could reſume that dreadful Superiority it had under Charles the Fifth. It is ſtill aſpiring, and would ſoon attain to it, through the Aſſiſtance of a World of blinded Allies, who, for it's ſake, ſquander away the Treaſures and Blood of their People: I ſay, It would ſoon arrive to it, if France ſhould grow weary of oppoſing, or ſhould be forced to yield to a too impetuous Torrent.

You have ſeen in one of Monſieur Mellarede's Memorials, which I have publiſhed, the Plots that are laid to break the Union of the Laudable Helvetick Body, and to deſtroy you by your own Hands. Be aware of the falſe Careſſes that are made uſe of to win you; Deſpiſe the vain Threats that are employed to frighten you; Fly from the Snares that are laid for you; Do not forſake your Common Intereſt; Secure with ſtricter Bonds your mutual Confederacy; Be ſtill more careful to preſerve your ſolid Alliance with the King my Maſter, and do not ſuffer your ſelves to be ſcared by the unfair Deſcription that is given you of his Loſſes. Whatever they are, They do not diſcompoſe his great Mind; They do not diſturb his Councils; They do not exhauſt his Treaſures; They do not cool the Zeal of his Subjects: He will not grow weary of Combating for the Liberty of Europe; and he will not be wanting in any thing to preſerve yours if it ever ſhould be attacked. This, my Lords, is what he has commanded me to declare to you; aſſuring you of his powerful Protection, and of his fœderable and ever inviolable Friendſhip.

Vienna, July 14. N. S. On the 6th Inſtant the Court went out of Mourning, and that Evening there was an Opera and a Ball at the Emperor's Palace of Schonbrun; and the two Days following the Court was entertained with a Tournament, in which the Emperor himſelf gained two of the Prizes, the other three fell to the ſhare of the Count de Zierolin, the Count de Colalto, and the Count de Paar. Baron Bartholdi, the King of Pruſſia's Miniſter, has lately received from his Imperal Majeſty the Inveſtiture of the Electorate of Brandenbourg and other Fiefs of the Empire, which are in the Poſſeſſion of his Pruſſian Majeſty and the Margravet his Brothers. This Morning the like Ceremony was performed by Baron Freyberg, in the Name of the Biſhop of Augsbourg. The 7th Mr. Stepney, Her Majeſty of Great-Britain's Envoy Extraordinary, and Monſieur Bruininx, who has the ſame Character from the States-General, two of the Mediators for the Treaty with the Malecontents, returned hither from Tirnau. The 11th a Conference was held at the Favorite in the Emperor's Preſence, upon the Affairs of Hungary, where all Letters and Papers which have lately been delivered on both ſides, were examined; and the Day following, the Biſhop of Oſnabrug and Count Wratiſlau acquainted Mr. Stepney ney and Monſieur Bruininx with the Reſolutions of this Court, and deſired them, in the Emperor's Name, to undertake another Journey to Tirnau; which they began the ſame Day at 4 in the Afternoon. General Herbeville is made Field-Marſhal of the Emperor's Forces in Bavaria, and will be going thither in few Days. Count Rechteren, the other Mediator, is arrived here from Tirnau.

From the Duke of Marlborough's Camp at Helchin, July 26. N. S.

On Tueſday the 20th Inſtant my Lord Duke of Marlborough entertained the Prince Royal of Pruſſia with a Review of the Second Line of the Army, which was drawn out for that purpoſe; and his Royal Highneſs expreſſed his Satisfaction with ſeeing the ſeveral Regiments ſo Compleat, and the Troops in ſo good a Condition. The 21ſt, part of the Troops appointed for the Siege of Menin marched to Courtray, and the reſt followed this Day, under the Command of General Saliſch, the whole making 32 Battalions and 25 Squadrons. They encamped at Leuwe, and were to inveſt the Town the 23d, there being already about 4000 Pioneers at hand, who were immediately employed on the Lines of Circumvallation; and Orders were given for making all the Diſpatch poſſible in bringing up the Artillery and Ammunition from Ghent, which muſt be brought a great part of the way by Land, for want of Water in the River Lys. The 22d, in the Morning, my Lord Duke went with the Prince Royal to ſee the Troops of Pruſſia and Hanover, which are encamped at a ſmall diſtance behind our Second Line; and the whole, both Horſe and Foot, appeared compleat, and in very good order. Monſieur d'Auverquerque marched that Day with the Army under his Command from St. Eloy-Vive, and came to Heſtre, on the Right of our Camp; and upon a ſmall Motion forward, made by our Army, for the better covering the Siege, thoſe Troops are now come into the Line. The 23d, my Lord Halifax came hither from Holland to wait upon the Duke of Marlborough, with the Earl of Dorſet and ſeveral other Engliſh Gentlemen, who attended his Lordſhip to Hanover: He intends to leave the Army in two or 3 Days, in order to embark for England. On Saturday his Grace received a Letter from Prince Eugene of Savoy, dated the 10th Inſtant, giving an Account, That his Troops had paſſed the Adige; that the Enemy, notwithſtanding the advantagious Poſts they have been ſo long intrenching, were retired before them with great Precipitation, having likewiſe left him Maſter of the Adigette and Malopera, two other Rivers, and were poſted on the Canal Bianco; and that he was preparing to improve this Advantage, of which we hope ſoon to have a good Account. The ſame Day Colonel Lalo marched from hence with 3 Battalions of Foot to meet the Boats that were coming up the Lys from Ghent, with part of the Artillery and Ammunition for the Siege of Menin. His Grace had this Morning an Account, That they were arrived yeſterday at St. Eloy-Vive; where they are taking ſome of the Artillery on Shore to be tranſported by Land, with hopes to carry the reſt with the Boats yet much higher, which will ſave ſome time.

Hague, July 27. N. S. The Town of Menin was inveſted the 23d Inſtant by the Troops under General Saliſch, who is to have the Direction of that Siege, which is to be covered by the main Army under the Command of the Duke of Marlborough. The Tranſport Ships which lately ſailed from the Texel arrived the 24th at Oſtend, where the Troops of this State, deſigned for the Deſcent, are to go on board them. Seven Engliſh and Fifteen Dutch homeward-bound Eaſt-India Ships are ſafely arrived in the Texel. Letters from France, come in this Day, ſay, That the King of Spain was arrived at Saragoſſa: That they talked of changing the Siege of Turin into a Blockade: And that the French Court had been obliged to take off ſome of the Impoſts on the Sea-Coaſts, in order to mollifie the People, who are exaſperated with the heavy Taxes laid upon them, the Loſs of their Trade, and the many Hardſhips they have ſuffered. It is ſaid, That the Duke of Vendoſme is arrived in the Netherlands, in order to command the French Troops on this ſide. We hear that Three of the French Lieutenant-Generals are broke for Misbehaviour in the Battle of Rammelies, two of which are the Count d'Artagnan and Monſieur d'Eſtain.

Letters from Barcelona give an Account, That they had received there the welcome News of the City of Madrid's having declared for their lawful Sovereign King Charles III. That the City of Saragoſſa, the Caſtles of Jaca and Aynca, and the greateſt part of the Kingdom of Arragon, had done the like: Whereupon Count Noyelles and the Prince of Darmſtad were marched from Lerida with ſome Troops and a Train of Artillery towards Saragoſſa, to put that Place into a Poſture of Defence.

The great want of ready Money in France appears daily more and more. It was ſome time ago found neceſſary to ſet up a Paper Credit, iſſuing Bills out of the Mint to be current in Payments inſtead of Money: This proving highly Prejudicial to Trade, a Declaration was publiſhed, whereby it was ordained, That all Bills of Exchange drawn upon any Perſon ſhould be anſwered part in Money, and the reſt in theſe Bills: But Money is ſo very ſcarce, that it has been impoſſible to comply with this Declaration: And on the other hand the Difficulties which their Traders are brought under by this way of making Payments is ſuch, that the French Miniſtry are altogether at a loſs how to put a ſtop to this growing Miſchief, which tends to the entire Ruine of their Commerce.

The King of Pruſſia has received, by an Expreſs, Letters from the Prince of Anhalt Deſſau, who commands His Majeſty's Forces in Italy, dated at St. Michael the 16th of July, which contain in Subſtance: That Prince Eugene having cauſed a Body of his Troops, under the Command of Colonel Patee, to paſs the Adige at Rotta-Nuova, he made the neceſſary Diſpoſitions for attacking on all ſides the Enemy's Army, which lay along the Adige very well entrench'd. This Enterprize was happily begun by Colonel Patee, who with his Detachment, conſiſting only of 2500 Men, went down the Canal de la Tratta to the Canal Bianco; and the Foot, with the Prince of Beveren, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Regiment of Wolfembottle, at their Head paſs'd that Canal with all imaginable Bravery. The Enemy fired a few Shot at our Men, who returned it from 2 Pieces of Cannon they had with them; upon which the French fled with the greateſt Precipitation, leaving behind them their Tents ſtanding, their Proviſions, and all they had in their Camp. After this happy Succeſs, Prince Eugene ſent to view the Po, and detached Lieutenant-Colonel St. Amour with ſome Troops to purſue the Enemy, and Colonel Patee was ordered to make a Halt near the Po, for the better ſecuring the Paſſage of the Canal Bianco. Monſieur St. Amour overtook, within 8 Miles of Oſtiglia, about 400 of the Enemy's ſick and wounded Men, guarded by 200 Foot and ſome Horſe, and had a ſharp Diſpute with them, and defeated the Enemy, of whom he took about 200, the reſt being cut to pieces. Upon this Loſs the Enemy on the 13th at Night quitted all their Poſts and the Lines they had made behind the Adige. The 14th the Prince of Anhalt, who had been left at St. Michael's with 28 Battalions and 24 Squadrons, order'd ſome Troops to croſs the Adige, and took off on the other ſide of that River. The ſame day he brought down the Bridge of Boats from Perona to St. Michael, and the 15th removed it to Biua; of all which he gave Advice to Prince Eugene, who ſent him Orders to march on without loſs of time towards Badia. According to our laſt Advices, the Enemy are retired behind the Mincio. Some Letters ſay, Prince Eugene laid a Bridge the 16th Inſtant at Night over the Po.

Portſmouth, July 10. The Rt. Hon. Lieutenant-General Lake arrived here yeſterday in the Afternoon. Sir Cloudeſly Shovell came to Town the ſame Night, and this Morning went and hoiſted his Flag on board the Britannia; being ſaluted at his going from the Shore by the Diſcharge of the Cannon on our Platform.
